DIY Throwing Game

Instructions No. 2135

Difficulty: Beginner

Working time: 4 Hours

This idea is already great fun to make. With a little skill, you can create a great throwing game that can be played indoors and outdoors. The game guarantees a lot of fun for young and old.

First take the plywood boards: drill two holes in one of the boards on the short sides at the top and bottom, in the other board only on one side. Make sure that the holes are at approximately the same height, as this is where they will be joined together or hung. Smooth the edges and drill holes with sandpaper.
Then paint the plywood panels with blackboard paint. Apply several coats of paint. Important: Let the applied paint dry completely before applying the next layer.
Paint the note boxes with craft paint. After drying, paint circles with blackboard paint. Again, apply several layers of paint.
Attach the note boxes to the boards with wood glue and let the glue dry completely.
Write the numbers for later scoring on the board surfaces of the note boxes. Use a chalk marker for this. This can be easily wiped off later with a damp tissue.
Tie the wooden boards together with a ribbon or hang them up.
Fill the jute bags with natural stones and knot them tightly.

Now the game can begin: Write down the names of the players with different coloured chalk pens. Lines can then be made in the corresponding colour next to the box that has been hit so that the score can be evaluated more quickly later.
